COLLOSSAL STEAL

INDICTED FOR CONSPIRING TO STEAL NEARLY $2,000,000.

Chose the Men They Wanted to Run Bank, Railroads and Other Things.

Denver, Col., Oct. 18.—Leonard Imboden, James A. Hill, C. B. Wilder, E. E. Hull, P. L. Hull, C. C. Roberts, W. T. Camp, D. M. Carri, A. B. Davis and J. H. Edmondson were today indicted by the grand jury on the charge of conspiracy to steal $1,712,587.13 from the Denver Savings bank, which recently went to the wall.

Hill is charged with stealing and embezzling $10,000 in addition to the above charges, and Edmondson is charged with stealing and embezzling $105,000.

The men are charged with conspiracy and it is specifically set forth that they "chose the men they wanted to run the bank, and that notes, certificates of deposit, drafts and other effects were to be honored as good when they were known to the officers by the men making them to be absolutely worthless and not to have one cent as collateral."

The grand jury also sets forth in the indictments that the above-named nine men conspired to run railroads, banks and banking institutions, all kinds of trust companies and industrial businesses in many and various cities in Texas, Oklahoma and Indian territories, Kansas, Missouri, Massachusetts and Colorado, besides in other parts of the United States, the exact places of which are unknown to the grand jury.

DISMISSED

Was the Indictment Against U. S. Senator Burton.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 18.—The indictment against United States Senator Joseph R. Burton, of Kansas, charging him with accepting money for his services in relation to the fraud order case of the Rialto Grain Company, pending before the postoffice department during his term as senator, was dismissed by Judge Willis Vandeventer today.

While dismissing the indictment because of three technical faults, the court directed that the grand jury be summoned November 9 to hear the evidence against Burton, with a view of returning a new indictment.

The three grounds on which Judge Vandeventer sustained the demurrer of the defense, which overthrows the indictment were that the charge failed to name the person with whom Burton made his alleged agreement to receive compensation, that the charge that he knew of the pendency of the case in the department is not explicit and that it is not shown that the postmaster general had any right to make the investigation.

BANK RECEIVERS

ASK TO HAVE EX-CASHIER BACHTEL DECLARED A BANKRUPT.

Allege That He Has Been Insolvent Six Months and Has Transferred Property to His Wife.

Special to Morning News. Cleveland, O., Oct. 18.—In a report filed in the United States district court Tuesday, Henry A. Wise and James G. Barbour, receivers for Canton State bank, which failed several months ago, ask that Corwin D. Bachtel be adjudged bankrupt.

Both Wise and Barbour are among the creditors of Bachtel, who is said to owe over $8,000 on promissory notes executed to the Canton State bank, of which he was cashier.

The receivers also allege that Bachtel has been insolvent for six months, and that he has broken the laws in bankruptcy by transferring all of his property to his wife since that time.

ACQUITTED

By the U. S. Court on Charge of Counterfeiting.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 18.—Lowry A. Barnhardt of Greensburg, Pa., charged with making counterfeit money, was acquitted in the United States district court today by order of Judge Joseph Buffington. Barnhardt, who is a mold-er by occupation, told the court he had gotten into an argument with a friend as to whether a silver dollar which would pass muster could be made in a mold. The friend contended that a die was necessary, and Barnhardt bet him $5 he could make a good dollar, using a mold. He made his mold and practiced by turning out iron and copper dollars, which he gave away to his friends as souvenirs. He then made one silver dollar to win his bet. The United States authorities had been informed in the meantime that Barnhardt was manufacturing iron dollars and arrested him. When taken into custody the mold and the dollar he had made to win his bet was found on him, and he was charged with counterfeiting.

Barnhardt has an excellent reputation, and the judge, in ordering his acquittal, warned the prisoner "to spread it broadcast among the molders that it was as dangerous to make iron money as to belong to a gang of professional counterfeiters."
